This interactive exhibit features three computer stations with "real-time" tracking programs on migratory birds, sea turtles, and peregrine falcons. Visitors can actually see where the tagged animals are on any given day. On the back wall of the exhibit, graphic globes show migratory routes for these animals; cases exhibit a peregrine falcon mount and baby sea turtles hatching from a buried nest. Examples of all the sea turtle species found off Padre Island are suspended overhead. An adjacent case displays specimens of colorful migratory birds that use South Padre Island as a stopping off place.
